James has been working a lot on top of doing class work and does not have time to try to find new hobbies.

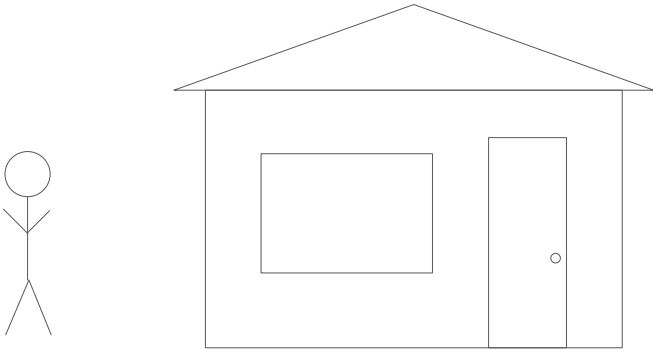

James downloads a new app in order to find some new hobbies.

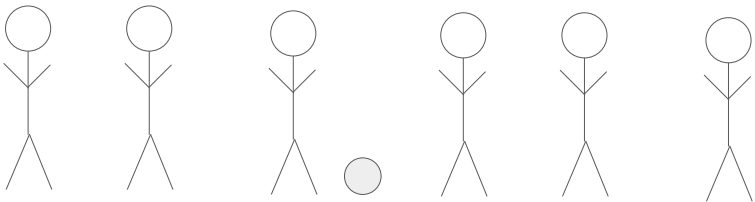

James creates a profile and inputs information on what he likes and what he wants to do.

James finds matches for possible hobbies he can partake him in his local area and also browses the app to see if there is anything else he might like.

James comes home from class and decides to see a new group of people he found on the app with common interests

James plays soccer with a new group of people he found at a local park.
